

Standing Rock Standing

By

Joan Candy-Fire, CADC

Description of Presentation

Experiences at Standing Rock, North Dakota protesting peacefully North Dakota Access Pipeline, showed empowerment, solidarity with over 100 tribes and people from many nationalities. Some struggling with historical trauma, PTSD, Addictions, became focused given meaning through healthy coping skills, helping, healing by prayers, sage, cedar, sacred fire, water ceremony

Objectives

- 1) Understanding different cultures to facilitate cooperation, readily address coping skills
- 2) Work together for common goals, common good
- 3) Protecting, defending natural resources in a good way
- 4) Address Powerless and loss

Bio

I have a BS in Psychology with emphasis in Sociology in 2005 from Rogers State University in Claremore, Oklahoma and CADC. I worked at NEOCC in Vinita, Oklahoma as a Prevention Specialist 1 and 11. Author of a cultural-based approach to Substance Abuse Prevention in the Native American Population, Jumping Mouse Journey to Recovery. I Received a grant from Rogers State University for poster presentation with Can Jumping Mouse Reach the Land of Recovery at the American Association of Behavioral and Social Sciences Eighth Annual Meeting in Las Vegas, Nevada.

